

About WEEEP

PROJECT OVERVIEW

WEEEP (Waste Electrical & Electronic Waste Partnership) is a recycling and reuse project, based in Central Scotland, that aims to provide computer skills training to low income families and reduce the amount of IT waste going to landfill.

The partners in the organisation provide specialised skills and expertise in logistics, community enterprise, training, and recycling, and work together to offer businesses a sustainable IT waste management solution.

The WEEEP partnership offers an integrated approach for the IT waste stream:

- IT waste is collected from the customer by International Waste Management Group (IWMG), for evaluation for reuse;
- Reusable equipment is sent to the Midlothian Advice & Resource Centre (MARC) for refurbishment and use in Community IT skills training;
- MagicWand deliver IT training courses, on behalf of MARC, teaching basic IT skills. IT Trainees are given the refurbished IT equipment for home use on successful completion of the course; to help with homework and adult training. This is a flexible solution for families.
- Residual End-of-life IT equipment is sent to Mook Environmental Solutions for disassembly, recycling and recovery.

Although driven by current and impending legislation (e.g. WEEE & Landfill Directives), the project has intrinsic values by offering tangible social, economic and environmental benefits, and will positively contribute to local and national sustainability and recycling targets.

We are starting in the Edinburgh and Lothian's area firstly then spreading across Scotland. MARC are looking for companies to sponsor community training events.
